The Coming Fight. The forcible residuating soreherds, shallow pates, and polical jackasses who have never ceased their brayings during all the not and dry weather we have lately had, must be taught a wholesome lesson. Like gadflies, mosquitoes, fleas, and bedbugs, they seem to be most active when the thermometer is in the nineties, and develop more freely as the failing streams produce stagnant cesspools. The good and true men of Virginia who were bamboozled into the Mozart Convention from true and patriotic purposes, as soon as they saw that the object of the concern was to break dewn the Conservative party, left it. Let not the selfish, time-serving, office-seeking, religious and political backsliders, whose crumbling and decayed platform fell beneath them before they got out of Mozart Hall, think they will be permitted "to walk over the track" without let or hindrance. The good and true people of Virginia, in whose keeping the fortunes and honor of the State have so far been safe, do not mean to surrender their beritage for the benefit of Massey or Paul. The patience and amis-bility of the masses, their weariness of political campaigns and elections, their re-Inctance to kick the agitators out of the Conservative party, have induced the rest-less blatherskites to believe that the party which has saved and is still saving Virginia was straid to meet them. It is necessary that the flea-bitten statesmen and small-beer policians should be undeceived, and as they are so anxious to butt their heads against the adamantine walls of the grand old Conservative party of Virginia, we are in favor of getting rid of them in that way.

Let both the light- and heavy-beaded gentry who want to be quiet for the balance of their days begin the butting process. When they do, it will not be long before Virginia will put her foot upon them. The people want rest and quiet. Their representatives have settled the debt question, and the forcible readjusters, who were not strong enough in the Legislature to prevent it, nor in Mozart Hall to be respectable, have neither the sense nor the power at this late day to stem the popular tide which sets so strongly in favor of the settlement effected with the bondholders. But if the disciples of Paul and Massey want employment, they can get it as gravediggers for their party and principles. Just let us know, gentlemen, when you are ready, and at the proper time Virginia will proceed with her rat-killing! And when she is through there will not be enough of you left to furnish breakfast for a first-class tortoise-shell Tom-cat .- West Point Star.

The Disorganizers.

The Conservatives of Virginia-the men who hold with the party that has saved their State from the bitter experience that other southern States had to endure before they secured control of their domestic affairs-should not fail to note the fact that the few newspapers now supporting the readjusters, and all the leaders in that movement now in the field, have been disorganizers for years past. The former supported Independents for the Legislature and for Congress, while the Rev. John E. Massey and his spouting associates have nearly al been independent candidates, and many of them were elected as such. The Mozart-Hall Convention that organized and, as they supposed, put in motion the machinery of the new party, was composed of these disorderly elements, and included some white all interest for the "poor peelers." And and black Republicans. They have no right, as to the eight million dollars funded, they therefore, to present themselves to the peo- will make a fat job for the lawyers. Seveand black Republicans. They have no right, therefore, to present themselves to the people of Virginia as Conservatives, and should not be accepted as such. They are disorganizers and bolters from the party, and lars will go into the people of the first opportunity of seeing the ral distinguished gentlemen will be employed by act of Assembly to aid the Attorney-General, and many thousands of dollars will go into the pockets of some who lars will go into the pockets of some who their success would disorganize and destroy lars will go into the pockets of some who the public credit, upon which they wage unceasing war.

We must, therefore, hold and treat Mr. Massey and his coadjutors as being outside the pale of any healthy political organization, and as enemies of the Conservative party in particular, since they are laboring by word and act to destroy it. Let the Conservatives give them no quarter, and in their treatment of these disturbers of the the most advanced order, and United States public peace, and destroyers of the public credit, show their abhorrence of the doc trine that teaches the people to break faith with the public creditors and to disregard their sacred obligations.

Virginia, that is now struggling to redeem herself from the foul odor of repudiation and to reinstate her credit upon a firm and enduring basis, cannot afford to accept the counsels of these men, and should not | date for the Legislature, and favors a repeal therefore listen to them. Turn a deaf ear to their appeals, organize the masses again for an overwhelming victory this fall in favor of honest money, State faith, and the establisment of public credit. The State Conservative Committee is called to assemble at Richmond Wednesday, August 7th. It is earnestly hoped that there will be a full attendance, and that the committee will take such active steps as will place the organization of the party in the counties and citles of the Common wealth in the hands of men true to the Conservative cause. It is time that work was begun. So far the committee have permitted a still fight to be made by the supporters of the Mozart-Halt black-and-tan organiza- may be deluded by "much sound and tittle tion. It is asserted that some of the State Conservative Committee are zealous supporters of that party, and that many of the members of the Conservative county committees are also active partisans of a body that has proclaimed its independence of the Conservative organization. This rotten wood must be cast aside; otherwise the Conservative structure will fall.

To do this, no milk-and-water policy should be permitted to control the deliberations of the State Committee. A positive position should be taken and active measures adopted for a vigorous campaign. Let the Conservative hosts see that their leaders are not derelict and victory is assured. But let these leaders continue negligent, and we are beaten. The Mozart faction are making an organized fight. Let our party do likewise. Let us go systemati- ized by a certain city journal-which preeally to work and throw aside the inertness | tends to be one of the champions of the that leads to defeat.
